Construction Law

The construction industry has a lot of moving parts and a lot of players. Developers, construction companies, design professionals, contractors, investors, and others in this field all require legal services suited to meet their specific needs. Our Construction Law group understands those needs and employs a practical, comprehensive approach to helping solve our clients' problems and providing the legal counsel they need. Through decades of professional experience in construction, our group has developed in-depth, firsthand knowledge of the industry, serving clients on construction projects from drafting contracts and plans, to the jobsite, and beyond.

Working cooperatively with other groups in our firm is a hallmark of our service to our clients. Our group works closely with the firm's Business & Tax, Environmental Law, Labor & Employment, Litigation, and Real Estate Groups to provide the comprehensive legal resources to meet all of your needs.
