Insurance & Benefits

The nature of the long-term care industry makes it extremely vulnerable to insurance problems and premium increases. Whether you need to develop alternative business insurance arrangements or a new benefit plan for your employees, we can be of assistance. We will help you keep costs down while assisting you to secure full coverage and follow all regulatory guidelines.

Labor & Employment

Managing employees effectively is critical to providing quality service to your residents. Our labor & employment attorneys can help you do so by educating your supervisory staff on union avoidance, performance management, discipline, employee relations, wage and hour law, sexual harassment, and interviewing and hiring methods. We can also assist you in drafting policies, procedures, and handbooks that will not only prevent employment claims and issues, but also create a fair environment and motivated workforce. When problems do occur, we will draw on our wealth of experience to defend against union organizing activity or deal with the NLRB, the EEOC, the Department of Labor, and other administrative agencies to get the best result for you.

Litigation

Claims Prevention

Long-term care providers are particularly at risk for a variety of claims from employees, residents, families, and visitors. When these matters occur, they can consume your time and financial resources. We can provide training and advice on how to prevent incidents that may result in claims – saving you time and money so you can focus on providing care.

Claims Management & Litigation

In the event that you do face an incident or claim, our litigators can help you manage it. We regularly work with a number of insurance carriers and have handled many cases involving workers' compensation, employment issues, medical malpractice, and general liability. In order to help you obtain the best result, we will investigate an incident before it becomes a claim. When appropriate, we will seek to resolve claims through arbitration. And when necessary, we will protect your interests in court.
